Developing Creativity Training

Creativity has typically been seen as something a fine arts degree holder would need, or something for children to use in their arts and crafts. However, recent developments among successful companies have found that creativity is the keystone to innovation, and subsequent success. It brings in employees, keeps them, and keeps the company successful and relevant. Creativity is oftentimes believed to work against productivity, and many employees feel pressured to be more productive than creative in their work choices. Developing Creativity Training is therefore set to help participants develop their creativity to the very best of their abilities.

Course Overview

You will spend the first part of the day getting to know participants and discussing what will take place during the workshop. Students will also have an opportunity to identify their personal learning objectives.

At the end of this one-day workshop, participants will be able to:

- Develop different perspectives.
- Improve self-productivity.
- Develop Creativity.

What is Creativity?

In this session, participants will learn the meaning creativity and the factors affecting creativity.

Getting Inspired

This session will focus about introspection, removing mental block, and art inspires art.

Beating Procrastination

In this session, you will learn to get rid of clutter, imposed limitations, build small successes, and not starting on the beginning.

Workshop Wrap-Up
